DANIELSON

Mrs. L. S. Ingalls, Mrs. L. E. Kennedy, Miss Marion Dunn, Miss Susan Collins and Miss Marion Wood will leave here today (Wednesday) for Vassar college, Poughkeepsie, to attend a gathering of representatives of Girls' clubs from many places in the eastern states. The party will motor out with Mrs. Ingalls and will be absent until Sunday.

The state police haven't been asked to do anything about the matter yet, but the owner of a missing overcoat may seek their assistance in locating his overcoat, which disappeared after a social gathering attended by a local man Saturday evening. And in the meantime the man who has the overcoat is chuckling because the owner has failed to remember that he loaned it to him to wear home.

Many citizens, some weeks since, signed petitions relative to having the New Haven road required to appoint gatekeepers at crossings in the town of Sterling—the crossing where Sunday's fatalities occurred and the East One crossing where the Styles fatal accident occurred some time ago. A well known citizen of the town of Sterling said Tuesday that these petitions are being forwarded to the public utilities commission, but nothing has been heard from them.

Coroner Arthur G. Bill stated Tuesday afternoon that he has written officials of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. company inquiring when it will be possible to allow members of the crew operating the train that was the grade crossing accident at Sterling Sunday to come to Danielson for the inquest. The coroner is to conduct. Coroner Jeremiah Desmond of New London county will come here from Norwich for this inquest, as Mrs. Jennie Metts, one of those who died of injuries, passed away at the Backus hospital in Norwich.

Up to the present time Coroner Bill has not learned that there were any witnesses of the accident. However, the driver of a car that went over the crossing just ahead of the Phillips car says that he heard the locomotive whistle just after his machine passed over the crossing.

The train, it is said, left Providence on time and met with no delays on the way to Sterling, so it is assumed that it passed over the crossing traveling at what is normal speed for passenger trains at that point.

Following funeral services at St. John's church in Plainfield today (Wednesday) the bodies of Byron Phillips, Mrs. Jennie Metts and Mrs. Phoebe Hebert will be buried in All Hallows' cemetery on the Green Hollow road.

Sherwood F. Potter, G. Rene Caron, Howard G. Franklin, Harry J. Hyde, Marjorie I. Gaffney and C. Clinton Cleveland, executive committee of Killingly High School Alumni association, have sent out notices to members of the association relative to commencement week. The association will tender a reception to the class of 1922 at the state armory Friday evening, June 23. The business meeting is to be held at intermission time on the night of the reception.

Admission cards for the class day exercises, Thursday, June 22, are to be issued to alumni members who are in good standing. The Alumni-K. H. S. games is to be played Friday afternoon, June 23. Alumni players are to report to Carroll B. Allen.

PUTNAM

Tuesday brought a circus to town—Sparks' World Famous show—and with it a circus day crowd, and balloons and peanuts and red lemonade and a jam of traffic.

Streets were fringed with people as the parade moved from Tatem field shortly after 10:30 o'clock and followed a route laid out for it through School, Providence and Marshall streets into Woodstock avenue and Bridge streets to Main and back through Grove street to the exhibition grounds.

Right here seems to be a good place to say that the parade was very good, made an excellent impression and was the means of getting much business for the show at both the afternoon and evening performances.

The entire equipment used in the parade was in first class condition. Three bands, two calliopes and a herd of six elephants and several camels were featured. There were several open dens of wild beasts, brightly lit, picture shows, and a variety of other attractions. A bevy of cowboys, and of course, a bevy of cowgirls, a strangely garbed, painted and befeathered man who rode atop one of the wagons was said to be the top candidate for official bootlegger of New England, but one couldn't believe a thing that some of the people in the crowd said, so this is given for what it's worth.

A beautiful lady that rode in a swaying howdah on the back of one of the elephants attracted attention. Watching the manner in which the seat in which she sat swayed convinced the average flapper that riding on an elephant's back furnished the firmest and most comfortable rocking horse dance, for indulging in which some patrons of dance halls are being chased off the floor. But this can't be blamed on the circus.

Raucous voices and roars, never missing from a circus parade, were on the job Tuesday, keeping up the crowd to see the "marvelous exhibition on the grounds immediately after the parade and the following announcements regarding the show in their ears hurried right over to the lot prepared to make a day of it.

The Sparks' shows were the best that have played Putnam in years—and the crowd was the largest in all departments this year and now borders the big show class. The opening spectacle—Visions of Arabia—made a fine impression. This pageant offered an opportunity for the presentation of all of the performers, elephants, camels, singing and dance girls and brought to a close by LeVerna Venable, the diva of the white tents, rendering a beautiful song to the accompaniment of the band while seated on the back of a monster.

The spectacle was a novelty and the costumes used were gorgeous. Trained seals, posing horses, riding balloons and dogs, performing elephants and other features of the show were in evidence. The circus was a real attraction of special note.

Patrons of the circus were pleased with all its features, which included a number of side shows. At the Day Kimball hospital Tuesday, the injured leg of Mrs. Della Phillips, who survived the crash of the train, was in the grade crossing accident at Sterling Sunday, was amputated in a desperate effort to save her life. Mrs. Phillips, whose husband and sister, Mrs. Phoebe Hebert, were killed outright in the crash, was in the grade crossing accident at Sterling Sunday night at the Backus hospital, from internal injuries received in the same crash between locomotive and automobile, was regarded late Tuesday afternoon as being in a critical condition. The Phillips' infant daughter which is at the Day Kimball hospital with her mother is doing well and gives every promise of recovering entirely.

Circus day brought a minor accident in connection with the passing of the parade. Returning to the exhibition grounds at Tatem field, the brakes on a heavy steam calliope that was being drawn by eight horses did not seem to hold well coming down a little grade on the corner of the main street and the vehicle lurched up against the pole horses, pushing them forward. A horse farther of the string began to prance, jumped over the pole of the rig and eventually brought up against the front of an expensive limousine that was crowded in close to the curb. Then the horses slipped and fell, his forward leg going under the running board of the limousine, which bore a Massachusetts license. The driver on the calliope must be credited with excellent handling of his horses during a trying minute and he came through the affair with practically no damage to the limousine and not at all to his own equipment.

A crowd that had gathered to watch the parade scattered as the horses were scrambling about, for a time threatening a real serious mix-up.

Pomfret school will close tomorrow, with the usual jollification exercises in the evening. Each year the parade of students and teachers, and a variety of members of the faculty with the huggable fire and fireworks to wind up the program of the evening attracts hundreds of people from all surrounding towns. The majority of the students will leave Friday for their home cities, in many parts of the country.

John Duda, owner of a bakery in the northern section of the city, is to be made defendant in an action to recover from him for an alleged violation of contract. Mr. Duda, months ago, purchased a check for $4,000, which he had caused to be drawn in payment for stock which it will be claimed, he purchased. Mr. Duda is said to have been advised that the stock in the purchase would not prove a satisfactory purchase and that it would be better to protect himself from possible serious loss while there was yet time. Mr. Duda seemingly acted on this advice, stopping payment on the check, which remains uncollected, and which the company whose stock Mr. Duda is said to have arranged to invest in is now taking action to collect.

Monday the last idle machine in the new plan to replace the one destroyed by fire early this spring has been constructed and the concern is again nearly full production possibilities.

Mr. and Mrs. Sharpe, whose hip was broken when a large limb from a tree fell on him last Sunday, is suffering considerable pain at the Day Kimball hospital, where he was brought after the accident, accord-

William Fox Sending His Biggest Production to This City
"Queen of Sheba" a William Fox super-special which enjoyed a sensational run on Broadway, New York, is booked for the Breed theatre beginning Sunday. It is described as a stupendous spectacle and a great love story. New York critics hailed it as one of the greatest photodramas ever produced. It showed it crowded houses throughout the run until taken off to make way for another of the Fox spectacles.

The filming of "Queen of Sheba" under the direction of J. Gordon Edwards took an entire year. Throughout the period a huge force of workers in many lines of endeavor was employed, and in addition every kind of idea known to the development of the West coast—actors, clerical workers, artisans and all—lost a personal interest in the progress of the stupendous production and lent their aid in it. Tom Mix, for instance, volunteered his services in rendering the chariot races thoroughly realistic.

The construction of massive sets, the designing and making of the elaborate costumes, the perfecting of the dances meant a vast expenditure of money and facilities in the way of completing the production on the scale originally planned seemed impossible. They were overcome, however, and "Queen of Sheba" given to the screen.

Betty Bishop appears in the role of the Queen, Fritz Lieber, the noted Shakespearean actor, is King Solomon, and Clair de Loren is Queen Amarath, wife of Solomon.

PHENOMENAL DEVELOPMENT OF READY ROOFING INDUSTRY
Asphalt Shingles and Roll Roofings Make Giant Strides
If the man who in 1909 went on record with the statement that wooden shingles "ruled the roof" and on paper as an unfitting and sensible covering for a roof could get a bird's eye of the average American residential or industrial community of 1922, surely something of a shakedown would be his portion.

The tale of the growth of the asphalt shingle and roll roofing business would read like a true romance. It is a typical American industrial achievement. In the process, covering a period of substantially 20 brief years, its very parallel perhaps has been the development of the power-driven automobile and the pleasure automobile.

When the asphalt shingle first was advocated by its pioneers, it was the butt of considerable humor in our best building circles. It was at the receiving end of much sarcasm and contempt.

At that time for roofing a house or a building, generally speaking, there were nothing but wooden shingles, and according to the alleged informed, there never would be anything but wooden shingles.

Notwithstanding the unprofitable fate predicted for the bold ones sponsoring the new-fangled idea, knowledge of the asphalt shingles, within five years, the volume of prepared roofing manufactured and sold was practically on a parity with the wooden shingle. And each ensuing year has seen its increase.

To the making of the asphalt roofing product of today every man, woman and child in America contributes. Its base is rag felt. The blanket one sleeps on tonight may be made of asphalt. Every nook and corner of the land is searched diligently for rags to be later converted into the heavy felt which is the first element in this roofing. Mexico and the United States furnish the asphalt, while the ground slate with which it is joined in the painstaking production process has its source in the quarries of Michigan, Georgia, Pennsylvania and Vermont.

The asphalt roofing industry is a wide-awake and aggressive industry. Irrespective of the position it has attained, its future is all ahead. When its story is set upon paper one of the most conspicuous names will be that of a New England organization, Bird & Son, Inc., of East Walpole, Mass., with their great roofing plants at that point, at Phillipsdale, Norwood, at Chicago, Illinois; Hamilton, Ontario, and Fort Rouge, Quebec. The first Bird & Son asphalt shingle was made at East Walpole on Jan. 1, 1912. Last year the shipment was 164,191 squares. This year the capacity has been increased 200 per cent.

How great has been the development in ready roofings generally perhaps finds its best demonstration in Bird & Son's record in the industry, an institution established in New England in 1795 and which has grown to be one of the largest of its kind in the world—an example of New England enterprise of which every New Englander may be really and truly proud.

New Britain.—Capt. Michael Souney of Co. No. 5 of the fire department will be promoted to second assistant chief engineer when the two-platoon system becomes effective.
